

Hello! I moved to the Black Hills area in 2017, and I have been a dedicated member of Breadroot just about ever since. Now is the right time for me to transition from just a shopper to a contributor. My motivation is simple: I want to give back to an institution that serves as a cornerstone of health and sustainability in our community. Whether it is providing accessible organic produce, maintaining an extensive bulk section to minimize our environmental footprint, or championing local producers, Breadroot provides a vital service that I am eager to help protect and grow.

Though my professional background is not in the grocery industry, I bring a robust set of transferable skills from my current professional role as a Program Coordinator. My daily work involves strategic planning, project management, policy development, and stakeholder engagement. Through this work, I am adept at overseeing complex initiatives from conception to completion, ensuring that resources are used efficiently. Additionally, I understand the importance of creating clear, equitable frameworks that guide organizational behavior and long-term stability.

From a Board perspective, I believe the primary challenge ahead is the balancing act between affordability and integrity. As the cost of living increases, Breadroot must find innovative ways to keep healthy, organic food accessible to all income levels without sacrificing the quality or standards our members expect.

Thank you for considering my candidacy! I would be honored to contribute to the continued success and growth of Breadroot. See you at the Co-op!
