

I'm running for the Board of Directors because Breadroot Natural Foods Co-op is more than just where I shop – it's a place I genuinely believe in. It's the only grocery store I use, and I regularly recommend it to friends and family because of its commitment to high-quality, thoughtfully sourced food and support for local producers. I value the cooperative model and the way it gives members a real voice in shaping the store's future.

As a new mom to my 9-month-old daughter, I feel an even deeper connection to this mission. Providing healthy food for my family is more important than ever, and I want my daughter to grow up understanding the value of community– being part of something that supports local producers and makes healthy, sustainable choices more accessible.

As someone who invests my own grocery budget here, I care deeply about Breadroot's long-term success. I want to help ensure it remains financially strong, welcoming, and accessible to a diverse range of households.

I bring strong communication and collaboration skills, along with a practical, solution-oriented mindset. I'm comfortable listening to different perspectives, contributing thoughtfully in group settings, and following through on responsibilities. I aim to balance big-picture thinking with attention to day-to-day realities.

One priority I care about is maintaining affordability while upholding the co-op's commitment to quality and local sourcing. I'm also interested in strengthening Member-Engagement so more people feel connected to the co-op and understand the value of ownership.

Serving on the board would be a meaningful way for me to give back to a place I already support wholeheartedly. I would be honored to contribute to Breadroot's continued success. Vote for me and I promise to fulfill the needs and ambitions of the people who shop at Breadroot!
