GREEN CAWOOD

Growing up helping run the family restaurant and living in rural Arizona, I became aware of the complexity of food systems at an early age. Group that with a lifelong appreciation for the natural world, working with Co-ops is a perfect fit. I feel that serving the local businesses of the community while focusing on healthy food options provided by local farmers and ranchers is the best way to strengthen ties and build a solid infrastructure regarding Rapid City food systems. Although I've only been in Rapid City for a handful of years, I consider myself a part of the community and am fortunate to contribute to the sustainability of the region in regard to providing quality ingredients and service to our guests.
